Today marks the day Marine Corps Yumi webcomic has revamped and relaunched its official English site! Woohoo!

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

A brief background for those of you not familiar with Marine Corps Yumi

In a nutshell, Marine Corps Yumi is a weekly webcomic about female Marines

The Japanese version of this webcomic began back in September 2012 and new episodes were posted every Monday (Tuesday for people living in Japan due to time zone differences.) We did a trial run of the English version on the same website, but we realized that the page navigation and other factors made the website not as user-friendly to English readers as we had hoped. After posting the first 30 English episodes, we decided to regroup and come up with a better game plan so English readers can access our comic better. That was last December.

After a few months of butting our heads against the wall, the editors and creator team agreed to set up a new satellite site dedicated to English readers. We have also launched an official tumblr site and Facebook fan page, and will tweet the heck out this series on Twitter as well. We hope that these new endeavors will enable us to reach out to English readers like you.

COMIC SCHEDULE

Because the first 30 English episodes were already released during the trial run, we preloaded the first 30 episodes to this site. So, you can click on "First" and read from episode #1 and catch up!

Japanese episodes will continued to be updated on Mondays (Tuesdays, Japan Time.) There are over 70 Japanese episodes at this time.

English episodes will be updated twice a week — on Wednesdays and Fridays (Thursdays and Saturdays, Japan Time) — until it catches up to the Japanese version. Once it is caught up, it will be updated on Wednesdays (Thursdays, Japan Time.)

(Sorry for the redundant time hacks for Japan, but that's where we launch the comics from.)

If you read this far, thank you! We hope you enjoy Marine Corps Yumi!! :)
